Letters to the Editor...

Dear Editor,

SDRC REJECTS FEEDLOT APPLICATION

The application for a 3150 feedlot on Colliery Park Road Allora was rejected by the Council on Wednesday, 23rd August. Residents are pleased with the outcome.

Several assessment criteria were not met by the applicant. Some of these related to soil quality, values of community members, Colliery Park Road not up to standard, insufficient truck access, significantly larger than the recommended 150 SCU as in planning scheme and the interpretation of "small scale" intensive animal industry, nuisance to other properties, proximity of 4.2 kilometres from Clifton when distance required is 6 kilometres.

Fifty-three submissions were received with concerns relating to buffer zones, water, odour, incompatibility with current land use, proposed traffic routes, impact to residents, impact on environment, organic farm concerns, conflict with character of the area, to name a few.

Further information can be read on SDRC website, which includes submissions, recommendations and council minutes.

Zoetis Tackles Rural Mental Health with beyondblue

There is an urgent, ongoing need to meet the mental health challenges faced by Australians in rural areas, where the rate of suicide is about 50 per cent higher than in major cities. Men in regional areas are on average 1.4 times more likely to end their life than their urban counterparts. From 2009 to 2013, residents of major cities had a suicide rate of 9.7 per 100,000 people, while the rates in regional areas steadily increased to around 12.8, with very remote areas having a rate of 21.52. "A range of circumstances specific to remote areas place rural Australians at greater risk of self-harm, including greater vulnerability to weather events and economic change, isolation and loneliness, social stigma and stoicism, and reduced access to support services," says Georgie Harman, CEO of beyondblue.

These statistics have prompted an ongoing partnership between leading animal health company, Zoetis, and national, not-for-profit organisation, beyondblue. In 2016, Zoetis donated $100,000 to beyondblue after collecting $5 from each sale of its cattle and sheep vaccines and drenches. Zoetis has committed to the same donation drive this year from 1 August to 31 October 2017.

"Zoetis is proud to once again be supporting beyondblue and the important work they do," says Lance Williams, General Manager at Zoetis. "Together we've made strong progress in providing tangible contributions to raise awareness of mental health challenges, and help fund much needed services that directly assist rural families. We are passionate about the importance of mental wellbeing and look forward to helping again this year."

Ms Harman says money raised by Zoetis supports beyondblue in reaching out to those in need: "The money raised by Zoetis goes directly to our phone and online services, which are an excellent way for people in the bush to get assistance. All the services beyondblue offers are free as a result of generous donations and sponsorships such as this one."

"Three million Australians are living with anxiety or depression, and around eight people a day take their life. This amounts to around 3,000 people each year – more than double the yearly national road toll."

"Timely diagnosis, support and treatment and ongoing management of a mental health condition in rural and remote areas is likely to occur later or not at all, resulting in an increased likelihood of self-harm and suicide."

beyondblue services include the BeyondNow app, which helps those experiencing suicidal thoughts, feelings, distress or crisis beyondblue's online forums bring together people affected by mental health conditions, including carers and friends, so they can talk to others in similar circumstances at any time. This can be done anonymously and safely in the online forums which are moderated by a combination of professionals and community champions.

The best place to start is to begin a conversation about mental health – asking how a mate or relative is travelling – can often be the first step in a journey to recovery.

People can support the Zoetis initiative by purchasing products between 1 August to 31 October 2017 from its range of cattle, sheep, pig, poultry or goat vaccines and drenches available at rural resellers. To make a donation to support beyondblue, visit zoetis.com.au/communitysupport

A little Party Never Killed Nobody

From humble beginnings back in 2005, the Allora High Tea has become a calendar favourite with the ladies who fervently wait to hear what the theme is for this wondrous day in downtown Allora!

Initially organised by Sue Stevens, Liz Sparksman, Marg Hentschel and Anne Glass (later joined by Kelly Robson and Karenne Mullins) to raise money and awareness for various charities, the event was held at the Steven's property but quickly outgrew it's home on the hill. Eleven years on, and now hosted at the Allora Community Hall, the High Tea has flourished into an amazing event contributing to both the community and the countless charities it has chosen to represent over its lifetime.

Last year, the baton was passed on to a new group of ladies eager to put their own spin on this grand occasion. The retired founders now enjoy the days proceedings from a different vantage point.

"I cannot wait to see you girls put your mark on this event!" - Marg Hentschel
Melissa Willett, Alana McMillan, Robyn Miles, Naomi Mullins and Krissy Henry have been eagerly organising another exciting High Tea and are dedicated to continuing the tradition of this fundraiser, hoping to carry on the founding members' legacy well into the future.

They welcome you to come and celebrate the 1920s in glittery 'Gatsby' style while raising money for this year's nominated charities: Kidney Cancer Foundation and Helping Hands Farm Relief. There will also be a 'mystery foundation' nominated by guest votes on the day that will benefit from this occasion.

Festivities begin at 2pm on October 7th with champagne, high tea delights and entertainment from singing sensation, Sue Reiser, and a live dance performances from The Candy Shop

Women's Health Week: Take the time to look after yourself

When it comes to health, many women are great at caring for others but often put themselves last. Now it's time for women to put themselves first.

Jean Hailes for Women's Health will be helping women make their health a priority during Women's Health Week 2017 (4-8 September). For women, the health of those you love starts with you. By investing more time in ourselves, we're better able to look after the ones we love and care about.

Across five days, Women's Health Week will be online and on-the-ground, helping women make positive changes that can last a lifetime. Women across Australia will learn more about their health and talk about issues they might not usually discuss. Free events, articles, videos, podcasts, recipes, tools and much more will be supported by a range of experts to help make women's health a priority.

To celebrate the week local Tai Chi for Health instructor Janet Bishop and Donna Neale-Arnold of Red Rose Healing Centre, Warwick invite you to come along to an information session and demonstration on Tai Chi for Health on September 12th, 5.30pm in Warwick; or September 14th, 8.30am, in Allora. Bookings are essential, Janet 0428891277.

"Women usually put the needs of their family ahead of themselves, but staying healthy in mind and body is good for the whole community. Women's Health Week is a chance for women to start prioritising their health, for everyone's benefit," says Jean Hailes Executive Director Janet Michelmore AO.

Janet and Donna encourage women to join in the Women's Health Week by taking part in a Tai Chi for Health information and demonstration. "These promise to be events that combine fun, friendship and gentle exercise."

Last year, 23,000 people participated in Women's Health Week events across Australia, with almost half in rural and regional areas. Join thousands of women across Australia and get rid of that elephant in the room that prevents many women from talking about health issues. Sign up today at womenshealthweek.com.au

Sheep Dog Trials

The Allora Sheepdog Trial Committee is currently hosting the 2017 Queensland Championship Sheep Dog Trials at the Allora Showgrounds.

There are 126 entries in the Open and Improver Trial, 77 entries in the Novice Trial and 33 entries in the Encourage Trial. Dogs and handlers have come from as far away as Victoria, New South Wales and western Queensland.

Last year's champion Craig Freestone has returned with three dogs, travelling from his home on the Gold Coast.

Geoff Gibson who has represented Australia and New Zealand is among the competitors this weekend. The youngest handler is fifteen year old.

The dogs are mainly Kelpies and Border Collies and not necessarily working farm dogs. 480 sheep have been trucked in from Karara.

The aim is for the dogs to take the sheep around the course. Points are lost when the sheep wander off course or double back. Fifteen minutes is allowed for this.

It is the sixth year that the finals have been held in Allora and Judy Allen from Southern Downs Working Dog Club said the hospitality of Allora Show Society is much appreciated.

TRL Wrap: Preliminary Final Day

In an amazing day, three minor premiers were bundled out of the 2017 finals series. Valleys in A Grade, Dalby in Under 18s and Gatton in Second Division.

Pittsworth were too strong for Valleys in the top grade and earned the right to defend their title.

Valleys Roosters V Pittsworth Danes - Pittsworth Danes won in a bruising affair over Minor Premiers Valleys Roosters in the Toowoomba Rugby League Preliminary final.

The Danes scored the quickest try this season when fullback Jeff Weber found a gap to score close to the posts after just 30 seconds. The try was a result of Valleys letting the kick off go into to touch, the ensuring scrum saw Weber cross Valleys try line.

The Roosters had the majority of possession after that surprise and pressured Pittsworth's line of many occasions before an errant pass right on Danes line saw Pittsworth winger Liam Jocusen intercept and run 85 metres to break the Roosters momentum.

They again scored and Pittsworth led 16-0 before Valleys finally scored close to half time courtesy of another 85 metre try to hard working Hnaloan Budden. But Pittsworth weren't finished and scored on the stroke of half time in a crucial period to lead 22-6.

Valleys came out after halftime firing and a magic try that Valleys captain Ryan Stevens set up. Jacob Ryals burst through off the shoulder of Stevens to get the Roosters back into the game.

But Pittsworth showed what they had done all season. They bounced back almost immediately, when Alex Sinclair flopped on a perfectly placed Daniel York grubber to score.

The Pittsworth try did again break the hearts of the Roosters team but Ryan Stevens never gave up and kicked a perfectly placed kick for high flyer, Emmanuel Cerei to return the game to a ten-point contest 26-16.

It was a race to the finish with Valleys throwing everything at the Danes but the 2016 premiers prevailed when half back, James Dempsey went in for his third try to basically secure the game 32-16 with 14 minutes remaining.

It was a ferocious affair with Pittsworth having four replacement cards left but there was no one left after Schnitzerling, Phipps, Miller and O'Sullivan had succumbed to injury.

The Roosters were no better with Choun, and Viane unable to complete the second half. Additionally, they were left with 12 men after interchange player Reggie Munn was sent off during the second half after repeated infringements.

Valleys fundamental mistakes again let their supporters down. It was their first finals football since 2013 and it showed as they missed many opportunities. Whilst Pittsworth were very aware of what was on offer after the win.

Pittsworth now proceed to the 2017 Grand Final to attempt to win two Grand Finals in a row.

A GRADE: Pittsworth 28 (James Dempsey 3, Alex Sinclair, Liam Jocusen, Jeff Weber tries Alex Sinclair 5 goals) defeated Valleys 16 (Hnaloan Budden, Jacob Ryals, Emmanuel Cerei tries Brett Seymour 2 goals)

(Reserve Grade) Dalby V Valleys - Valleys Roosters flew the club's flag by edging out Dalby in a hard-fought affair. They led 10-0 at half time and Dalby scored two unconverted tries in the second half to get a sniff but to no avail.

The Roosters will play Gatton Hawks in the grand final for the fourth consecutive year.

RESERVE GRADE: Valleys 10 (Dylan Haaijer, Daniel Bain tries) defeated Dalby 8 (William Hounslow, Brenton McMillian tries)

(Under 18) Dalby V Warwick - The TRL under 18 competition continued their wonderful close season when Warwick won a tight battle against Dalby to advance to a replay of last year's final. They play Valleys. Warwick were yet to defeat minor premiers with their two regular season games very close.

The lead changed hand a few times with the Cowboys grabbing the lead with 10 minutes remaining and holding on for an epic win.

Next Week's Grand Final -
Second Division – Pittsworth V Dalby
Under 18- Valleys V Warwick
Reserve Grade – Gatton V Valleys
A Grade – Dalby V Pittsworth
