Big Thanks To Helpers On Matt's Day

Some of the wonderful helpers who made the day such a great success.

The Scope Club of Allora Inc. would like to congratulate and thank the Southern Downs Regional Council staff and Councillors for their support of our community for the Matt Denny welcome home.

It was a pleasure to see so many working together for such a positive outcome. The donation of food from the local coffee shops and the bakeries in Warwick and Toowoomba so afternoon tea could be free of charge was wonderful to see. And a big thanks to the local business houses for their welcomed support.

It was great to be able to use the community hall for this occasion. Thanks also to those who supplied decorations, set up and then cleaned up. We really appreciate everything that Sue Higgins did to organise and co-ordinate this event. Thanks also to the Allora Advertiser for their continued support of all things local.

And the biggest THANK YOU to Matt for giving his time so generously over the weekend. A true ambassador for his sport and Allora. Thank you all.

- President Jill Leeson and members of Scope Allora.

Letter to the Editor...

October is Seniors Month and some of our Warwick Senior Citizens kicked off the month long celebration by welcoming Matthew Denny home. Cameron Haidley of Haidleys Coaches worked with the seniors to plan the outing. With Mr Haidley's our seniors with Wheelie Walkers and motorised scooters were able to board the bus safely via a ramp. On arrival in Allora the members of the Allora community were truly amazing. Supplying seniors when they emerged from the viewing of the Parade with a good old fashioned Allora welcome and a good old fashioned cuppa. The Scope Ladies were wonderful supplying seniors with tables to sit at and cups of tea and coffee. Our members will be talking about the 2024 Olympic Bronze Medallist Matt Denny for years to come. Matt shared his time most generously and is as down to earth as they come. Members of the Warwick Senior Citizens Welfare Association now look forward to attending another day in Allora on October 25th where Darryl Kraft and the Bangles will perform at the Community Centre.

A Drop-In Centre For Vulnerable Women

The Southern Downs Women's Support Centre is up and running following the transition from the Protea Place pilot project.

This project is now open with qualified staff and volunteers waiting to serve vulnerable women in the Warwick community. Everything previously donated by the community is still intact and operational.

The Southern Downs Women's Support Centre vision is "Connecting vulnerable women so they believe they matter."

Their mission is "to provide a safe and welcoming environment for vulnerable women who may be experiencing homelessness or disadvantage. A place of safety, dignity and acceptance that will empower women to rebuild and transform their lives. A home-like drop-in centre where women are encouraged to self-determine through connection and support."

While the service is in the caretaking of the Uniting Church for the next 5-6 months, legal requirements, new registration, branding etc, are being finalized to future-proof the provision of this community service. New opportunities are being explored with the local community to enable this service to continue to provide support and assistance to local vulnerable women.

Opening Hours are Tuesdays and Thursdays 9.00am to 2.00pm.
Address: 37 Guy Street, Warwick.

New Format For 2025 Citizen Of The Year Awards

Southern Downs
REGIONAL COUNCIL

Our region has many wonderful community spirited citizens who would be worthy of this award.

Here is our opportunity to put their name forward to the Southern Downs Regional Council for an Award.

The Council is calling for nominations to honour these inspirational individuals whose dedication, service and community spirit deserves recognition.

In a refreshed format, the 2025 Citizen of the Year Awards will be celebrated on Australia Day as a unified event that reflects the inclusive spirit of the Southern Downs community.

Additionally, a Junior Cultural Citizen of the Year category has been introduced, bringing cultural recognition into alignment with the existing sports categories that distinguish between junior and adult achievers.

The 2025 Citizen of the Year Award categories include:

- Citizen of the Year Award
- Junior Citizen of the Year Award
- Sportsperson or Sports Administrator of the Year Award
- Junior Sportsperson of the Year Award
- Cultural Citizen of the Year Award
- Junior Cultural Citizen of the Year Award
- Community Event of the Year Award

Southern Downs
Councillor Morwenna

Harslett encouraged the community to reflect on those who have had a positive impact on the liveability of the region.

"Our community is rich with individuals who give their time, talent and energy to making the Southern Downs a better place, and I urge you to nominate those inspiring people who embody our region's spirit of generosity and commitment." Councillor Harslett said.

Mayor Melissa Hamilton said the awards are a timely opportunity to recognise those who go above and beyond for their community.

"Whether it's through volunteering, leadership or acts of kindness, these awards celebrate the spirit of giving and community service," Mayor Hamilton said.

"Let's come together to honour those who make a difference in our community on Australia Day. Nominate your community champion today!"

Nominations close at 5pm Sunday 1 December 2024. Forms and guidelines are available on Council's website at sdr.c.qld.gov.au/our-region/explore-southern-downs/events-and-festivals/southern-downs-citizen-of-the-year-awards-2025.

Council will also soon seek expressions of interest from community members to join the Citizen of the Year Awards selection panel, fostering greater community involvement in the nomination assessment process.

Council urges compliance with sewerage works policy

Southern Downs Regional Council reminds residents and contractors to comply with the Works near Council's Water, Sewer and/or Stormwater Infrastructure Policy to avoid prosecution and costly remediation works.

A recent review of works across the region uncovered multiple cases of unapproved construction, which had the potential to pose damage risks to Council's essential infrastructure.

Common policy breaches included building over or near to water, sewer or stormwater infrastructure; blocking access to these networks; changing the surrounding ground level; and altering surfaces to cause water to pool over access points.

Residential driveways, often linked to new shed constructions, were identified as the most common breaches.

Applications for building work over or near Council infrastructure must be submitted at least 20 business days prior to works. Any unauthorised works or failure to comply with policy conditions may result in prosecution under the Water Supply (Safety and Reliability) Act 2008 or Queensland Development Code MP 1.4.

Let's join Sally Higgins on the next leg of her Overseas Farm Visit...

Lessons from Nebraska: Rethinking Food Production for a Sustainable Future

After travelling through New Zealand and Canada, the third leg of my Nuffield Global Focus Program took us to Nebraska, in the mid-west of the United States. I took away three key learnings for how we can think about food production in Australia:

Educating consumers on the trade-offs for sustainable food production – Darr Feedlot, a sophisticated feedlot finishing up to 48,000 head annually, highlighted the trade-offs of using technology for efficient production, while adapting to consumer preferences. The Operations Manager, John, described that hormone and growth technology has reduced water use by 30%, and feed inputs by 25%, and achieved a lifetime saving of $350 per beast finished. However, the US beef market is demanding more grass-finished beef due to environmental and ethical concerns. John explained that sustainable food production requires trade-offs – using growth hormones presents some ethical considerations, but it also reduces the lifetime inputs required to finish an animal (i.e. requires fewer inputs such as land, water and feed, all of which contribute to an animal's life-time emissions). John believes that agriculture has an important role to play in educating consumers on these trade-offs to help people understand the impacts of their food choices.

Opportunities for circular economy and community benefits from intensive farming systems –In Nebraska, many farms incorporate energy generation. Tuls Dary's Nebraskan site milks 11,000 cows, producing 125,000 litres daily. The animal effluent is a valuable byproduct and has two important purposes. The cow manure is recycled to become a natural fertilizer, and the methane gas released from the fertilizer production process is turned into a natural biogas for energy use. This not only supports Tuls sustainability goals but is benefiting the broader community and farming industry.

Technology adoption to address labour costs and skills shortages – Broadacre corn

and soya farmer, Bart Ruth, showed how technology is driving efficiency gains on large-scale farms. Bart and his wife Lynne, farm 3,500 hectares of corn, soybeans, and wheat near Rising City. They spoke to us about how cropping farmers have struggled to find and retain skilled employees. Bart has adopted modern cropping technology, such as precision agriculture, specifically variable rate technology and autonomous tractors to increase the efficiency of his operations and reducing his reliance on labour.

Nebraska showed us how intensive farming systems, when well designed and incorporated into a regional economy, can produce food efficiently while also delivering positive environmental and community impact.

IS THIS THE LAST ELECTION WITH A LOCAL VOICE?

Fight to keep local stories alive

Our local stories are at risk without our fair share of government advertising.

This election, over 60 independent local newspapers across regional Queensland will report extensively on grassroots issues, giving locals a voice on the future of our state.

Most government advertising spend goes to big city media and tech giants, who don't employ local journalists or publish local news.

If you take away the papers, you take away our local stories.

The Victorian Government acted to protect its regional news media by mandating a 'page per week' of government advertising spend in every regional and community newspaper.

Our independent newspapers employ hundreds of local journalists and publish thousands of local stories, and during election periods are often the only media dedicated to reporting on local election issues.

An equitable share of government advertising will help ensure that regional newspapers remain a beacon of truth, connection and resilience.

We need to act now for change.

Fight for the future of regional and community newspapers by asking your local candidates to commit to an equitable allocation of government funds.

Will your MP fight to support regional and community news?
